Texas Business and Technology Educators Association May 2010 Membership Update

May 5, 2010

Daniel Blier
Blierdan@aol.com

Dear Daniel:

Happy Cinco De Mayo! This holiday is especially important here in Texas as nearly 50% of our kindergarten through 12 grade students are Hispanic. The diversity of our student population and teacher ranks makes our state's education both unique and challenging. Speaking of challenging, the technology credit requirement eliminations are making the lives of some of our business teachers stressful. I am hearing from several of our members that positions are being cut and teachers are being told to get recertified in core areas. I have deep concerns with this strategy. Although getting recertified may keep these individuals employed, we are eliminating great teachers that are teaching life skills and career oriented skills. Eventually companies will find that our high school students are no longer coming to their businesses with entry level technology and career skills. This will also mean that our high school graduates may not arrive to their college or university of choice with the necessary technology skills for success.

As we prepare for summer, some of our members may be forced to seek a new position. If you know of any open business or technology position in your district or area, please provide me with as much information about the position and contact person as possible.

In this month's update, please note the upcoming deadline for the Texas Career Education Conference. Under the Governmental Relations/Legislation category, you will find a call to action for all TBTEA members to reinforce what CTE and Business classes mean for our students and the business community.

Have a great month of May! Summer is right around the corner.

Daniel Blier
Vice President – Secondary Education

GOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS/LEGISLATION

Call to Action - Working Toward Reinstating the Technology Credit

By eliminating the training to use technology as a requirement, Texas and local school districts are going in the wrong direction. The three links are two articles, one from CTAT and one from ACTE about CTE and the technology credit issue. The third is my recent letter to the school board and administration of Lewisville ISD asking them to reconsider their decision. I strongly recommend that you use my letter and change the information to reflect your district's information and send this information to your Superintendent and other senior administrators and each School Board member. My superintendent has stated they will review it for 2011-2012. Even if your school district has elected to make technology a local requirement, it is important that we reinforce this positive decision. Please do not sit on the sidelines waiting for someone else to save these jobs.
