OK Teen Birth Rate

You can participate in an evidence based program to implement sexual risk avoidance education in Oklahoma. What's in it for you? $500 for your classroom, incentives for your students, and the knowledge that you are helping Oklahoma teens reduce their chance of early birth. Teen moms traditionally have a lower level of schooling which typically reduces earnings and family income. According to the National Center for Health Statistics in 2016, Oklahoma had 33.4 births per 1,000 females ages 15-19, second only to Arkansas. Oklahoma has ranked second in teen birth rates from 2013-2016. Training for those selected for the project will be January 13-15, 2020. Be a part of the solution and sign up today here.
