Ethics and ethical decision-making are crucial components of adolescent growth—but sometimes, it's challenging to get started. That's why we are thrilled to share that our development of middle level ethics education materials is almost complete!

This summer, 10 instructional modules will be made available to middle level educators at no cost, thanks to the generosity of the Daniels Fund. Developed with the help of the Association for Middle Level Education (AMLE) and a middle school advisory network, these modules are comprehensive, ready-to-use lesson plans that integrate social-emotional learning geared for middle school students.

Modules include student narratives, ethical dilemmas, discussion prompts, reflections, activities, and more!
